U.O.Reply No. 232-A/31/4

In the higher elementary training class 15 and 23 were refused admission in 1929-30 and 1930-31 respectively. Regarding school classes, the Superintendent has reported that no record is kept as to the number of students refused admission, that if seats are available they are admitted and if not refused. She states, however, that the number can roughly be estimated at about 70 in 1929-30 and about 100 in 1930-31. This is taking all the classes together, but it may be assumed that the refusal of admission applies to the lower classes as it is in these classes that the demands for seats exceed the accommodation.

At this time of financial stringency it is not possible to consider proposals for increased accommodation in this school.

The school is a combined high and training school. The high school has classes I to X + forms I to VI. The training school is of the higher elementary grade. The Director points out that the refusal of admission for want of accommodation takes place mostly in the lower classes. Apparently he considers that the girls who are refused admission may seek admission in elementary schools in the town and that there is no urgent need for increasing the accommodation Inadequacy of accommodation in the Government Secondary and Training School for Women, Mangalore.
